

I was shocked and angered by the Janet Jackson/Justin Timberlake nudity during the Superbowl halftime. Parents expect that a football game is OK for their children to watch and their children were exposed to this with no warning. Then were the ads with flatulent horses, beer, erectile disfunction and more. Isn't there anything that the FCC can do to at least penalize not only FCC, the Superbowl, and MTV but also the artists involved?

Thanks,

Vi Glickstein